

Instruction Writing

Check your instructions to make sure you've included the following features:

	Title which shows what the text is about. It may begin "How to..."		Adverbs for how the actions should be done.
	Sub-headings to break the text into clear sections.		Chronological order and time conjunctions
	An opening sentence which encourages the reader to have a go.		Technical vocabulary which is specific to the task.
	A clear list of equipment or ingredients needed.		Diagrams or illustrations with labels.
	Simple steps for each action in the method.		Technical/ topic vocabulary
	Imperative (bossy) verbs telling the reader what to do.		Closing statement which shows or describes what the reader has achieved.
	Bullet points or numbers for each step.		Modal verbs to show the degree of possibility (might, should, etc).

Today, we're going to publish our instructions

- You can use the coffin template provided. Write your instructions out on the coffin sheets, leaving one as a front cover. Cut them all out and stick or staple together with the top sheet as an illustration and with the title on.
- Alternatively, come up with your own way to display the instructions. Be as creative as possible.
